DIVING

The depths of the Colombian Pacific are a must in your bucket list, Bahía Solano shares the common characteristics of diving in the Colombian Pacific: rocky bottoms or ridges with large fauna and variable visibility conditions. Between the ridges there are vertical walls, mountains that emerge from the sea, countless small caves and aquariums with crystal clear water. From Utria Cove to Cabo Marzo Sentinels, there are over 200 dive sites, among the most predominant coral species we can find angelfish, butterfly, sea turtle, cabrillo, parrot, jellyfish and puffer fish and larger species such as snappers, jacks, amberjacks, mantas, tuna, sharks, groupers, whale shark, barracudas, sailfish.
