Rosewood São Paulo

Mirroring the energy and heritage of Brazil, Rosewood São Paulo is an urban oasis located in Cidade Matarazzo, a complex of elegantly preserved buildings from the early 20th century. The luxury hotel anchors this stylish mixed-use cultural destination, occupying one of the area's few remaining historical landmarks and a striking new vertical garden tower designed by Jean Nouvel with rooms designed by Philippe Starck.

Classics with a modern twist are the essence of this contemporary brasserie inspired by the life and creativeness of Blaise Cendrars, a pivotal figure in the shaping of the modern art movement. Located on the ground floor of the historic Maternity building, the restaurant brings a modern menu prepared with Brazilian ingredients in individual dishes or to share, prepared in a bustling open kitchen. This contemporary restaurant overlooks gardens in an atmosphere that transports guests to what Blaise Cendrars' home might have looked like, the retreat of a flourishing gentleman, a wooden chalet tucked away in a forest.

The cozy interiors boast a simple yet tasteful décor, with lively hand-painted wall tiles by Brazilian artist Fernando de La Rocque covering an impressive open kitchen, which is the very core of the brasserie.

There is an understated elegance in the ambiance, from the food to the local marble tabletops. A Brasserie with regional Brazilian ingredients where flavorful cooking is essential, and taste is paramount. Blaise's culinary mood blends the Brazilian and French cultures conveying an absolute passion for life.
